Overview

Neighborhood Safety Initiatives, a program of the Center for Court Innovation, seeks to improve public safety in New York City by investing in residents, transforming public spaces, and influencing policy. The program provides training to local residents in community organizing, human-centered design, and re-envisioning public spaces to promote people’s wellbeing. Residents propose tangible solutions to challenges and learn how to access the resources needed to carry them out and support community safety.

The key pillars that form the foundation for our work are:

- racial equity
- shifting power
- access to resources
- inclusive design
- deep participation

365 NYCHA residents across five boroughs make up the 17 resident teams led by Neighborhood Safety Initiatives engagement coordinators.

Reimagining Public Safety

Neighborhood Safety Initiatives improves public safety by training local residents in community organizing and problem-solving efforts, human-centered design, and re-envisioning public spaces to promote people’s wellbeing.

Residents propose tangible solutions to challenges and learn how to access the resources needed to carry out plans of action that support community safety. Staff co-design and execute participatory decision-making processes to center residents in government decision-making and resource allocation.

- Invest in Residents
  Neighborhood Safety Initiatives hires, trains, and supports community organizers; recruits and organizes resident leadership teams; designs and implements social programs; manages community action plans; and implements data collection and evaluations. Social programs include youth mentorship, coding courses, music mentorship, adult entrepreneurship, intergenerational green space stewardship, healing and justice events, public education campaigns, summer time basketball series, economic mobility events and more. Neighborhood Safety Initiatives also responds to residents’ immediate needs. The program coordinates collaboration across city agencies and other non-profit partners to answer food needs, connect residents to resources, and host conflict resolution events.

- Transform Public Spaces
  Neighborhood Safety Initiatives works with residents to re-envision public spaces to make them more welcoming and promote people’s wellbeing. In the last two years, as part of the action plans, the program has designed and implemented a series of community gardens and recreational public spaces, wayfinding projects, murals, creative lighting installations, and a pop-up outdoor program with movable kiosks.

Influence Policy
One of the program’s overarching goals is to bridge the gap between policymakers and community members. Neighborhood Safety Initiatives uses resident teams to identify policy issues and discuss them with representatives of city agencies and other stakeholders. The teams then use a participatory decision-making process to bring even more residents to the table. Additionally, the program co-hosts a yearly policy summit, an interactive day of learning and idea sharing about how to create safety.

Emergency Response
Throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, Neighborhood Safety Initiatives has invested in resident well being and local leadership networks by conducting a needs assessment, helping residents deliver essential goods to their neighbors, and offering informational seminars.

Background
Since 2018, Neighborhood Safety Initiatives has overseen the implementation of NeighborhoodStat, a local problem-solving process funded by the Mayor’s Office. The Mayor’s Action Plan for Neighborhood Safety (MAP) initially identified 15 public housing communities disproportionately impacted by persistent levels of violent crime and disorder for participation in the program. Nstat and Neighborhood Safety Initiatives work together to engage residents in community organizing and local problem-solving efforts and invest in solutions that build capacity and provide access to city resources and opportunities. Recently, two sites have been added to the original 15.
